

Camila Montaldo

Producer The South Project.

Buenos Aires, 1993.

Based in Barcelona since 2018, Camila is a journalism graduate, scriptwriter and producer. As a journalist she publishes in several media in Argentina, such as Forbes, Revista La Agenda and Sección Ciudad, and she is trained in non-fiction narratives with Cristian Alarcón.

In Spain, she studied Series Scriptwriting at Showrunners Barcelona and the Master's Degree in Fiction Series Scriptwriting at ECAM. In 2021 she founded the production company The South Project with two partners, with which she produced three short films and the feature film La Noche de la Infancia (ICAA, ICEC, TV3, RTVE, FILMIN), currently in post-production. She combines her production work with art direction, her own scriptwriting projects, and other marketing and advertising projects for which she does creative direction and copy. In addition to the production company, in early 2024 she founded Better Peggy, a design and marketing agency for the film industry that combines her two worlds: film and communication.
